

RR6 Students set for elite University Summer Schools

RR6 Wimbledon sixth formers Adama Kabba, Fahad Ali and Gzim Hasani know how they will be spending their summer holidays.

All are successful applicants to the Sutton Trust University Summer School Programme. Teachers at RR6, which is a sixth form federation of Rutlish School and Ricards Lodge High School were delighted to learn that the high flying students had been selected to participate in the programmes at the University of Cambridge, University of Oxford and Yale University in the United States.

RR6 student Adama Kabba who was selected for a summer school place at Yale said “the programme is the perfect stepping stone to achieve a place at an American University “. Gzim Hasani who hopes to study Medicine said “I will be staying at St John’s College, Cambridge and gaining an insight into what undergraduate life will be like”. Fahad Ali also hopes to study Medicine and is excited about spending time in the historic city. In addition Fahad will also be attending UNIQ the University of Oxford Summer School for a week as part of his own initiative to prepare himself for higher education.

The students faced fierce competition as only 1900 places were available and applications topped 10,000. Applications to the programme are now closed for this year.
